

What's the best way to prepare your students for English-Language Arts and English-Language Development testing this year?

Transform them into kids who love to write!

Your students will leave this assembly motivated and ready to write their own stories, or your money back.

Writing Adventure!

- ✓ The use of exciting balloons as props and costumes makes even shy children want to add to the story.
- ✓ After playing my Story Invention Game, your students will be crazy to make up new stories.
- ✓ Even the "cool" 6th graders in the back get excited and involved.
- ✓ The Story Invention Game teaches students to combine nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs into a hilarious original story. "Even I learned something." Carr Elementary PTSA President
- ✓ Students go back to class eager to write a story for my Story Writing Contest and a chance to win a FREE follow-up show for their school -- where they are the star of the show!

(Often, they don't wait for class to start writing. At recess, the children buzz with ideas and even grab their friends to write as a team.)

Wow! The show was fantastic. I have never heard such a positive reaction from the teachers and students about an assembly before. You were wonderful.
